PART I: INTRODUCTION

Electoral District Boundaries Commissions are periodically appointed to review the Yukon's electoral district boundaries and make proposals to the Legislative Assembly as to the numbers, names and boundaries of those electoral districts. Such periodic reviews, as established by legislation, are primarily required to accommodate fluctuations in the population density and rate of growth within the Yukon.

Following the appointment of a Commission, representations are solicited from stakeholders and the Yukon public at large and an interim report is prepared. Once the interim report has been submitted, public hearings are held and any further representations are considered in the final report.

This is the final report required by section 417 of the *Elections Act*¹. It is submitted to the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly for tabling and consideration by the members of the Legislative Assembly ("MLAs"). Following the tabling of this final report, the government is required by section 418 of the Elections Act to introduce legislation to establish the Yukon's electoral districts. The government is not bound to accept the Commission's proposals.

Commission Members

Section 408(1) of the Elections Act determines who is eligible to be appointed to the Electoral District Boundaries Commission.

The members of this Commission are Mr. Justice Leigh F. Gower, Jo-Ann Waugh, Chief Electoral Officer, the Honourable Ione Christensen, C.M., Dave Hobbis, and Dan Lang.

Justice Gower is the chair of the Commission, pursuant to section 408(1)(b) of the Elections Act. He is a judge of the Supreme Court of the Yukon Territory and a deputy judge of the Supreme Court of the Northwest Territories and the Nunavut Court of Justice. He is also a judge of the Courts of Appeal of Yukon, Northwest Territories and Nunavut. Prior to his appointment as a judge in 2003, Justice Gower acted as legal counsel for the previous Yukon Electoral District Boundaries Commission in 2001-2002

(the “2002 Commission”). Justice Gower has resided "north-of-60" since 1984 and has lived in the Yukon since 1991.

Ms. Waugh is the chief electoral officer of Yukon and is a member of the Commission pursuant to the Elections Act. In her previous position as the assistant chief electoral officer, she provided secretariat support and technical advice to the 1984 and 2002 Electoral District Boundaries Commissions.

Mrs. Christensen has been active in Yukon public life for over forty-seven years. Her work-related activities have spanned the full spectrum of Yukon concerns in both the public and private sectors. They include economic development, the environment, and judicial and social issues. Mrs. Christensen has also spent considerable time in political office, serving as Mayor of Whitehorse, Commissioner of Yukon and most recently, Senator for the Yukon.

Mr. Hobbis has been a Yukoner since 1969, having come north to attend the Yukon Vocational Training Centre in the Heavy Equipment Mechanic Program. Mr. Hobbis resides in Whitehorse with his wife, Barbara, and has two adult children, Chris and Davida, also of Whitehorse. Recently retired from the Government of Yukon, Mr. Hobbis spent the last 20 years as President of Yukon Employees’ Union.

Mr. Lang was elected as a Member of the Yukon Legislative Assembly for five consecutive terms from 1974 to 1992. Since 1992 he has been actively involved in numerous community organizations and is presently the vice-chairman of the Board of Governors for Yukon College. Mr. Lang is employed in the real estate sector.

Mandate of the Commission

The function of the Commission is set out in section 409 of the Elections Act. It is:

... to review the existing electoral districts established under the Electoral District Boundaries Act and to make proposals to the Legislative Assembly as to the boundaries, number and names of the electoral districts of the Yukon.

The Commission carries out this mandate independent of government.

Section 419 of the Elections Act sets out the relevant considerations the Commission must take into account in the preparation of this final report. They are:

- (a) the density and rate of growth of the population of any area;
- (b) the accessibility, size and physical characteristics of any area;
- (c) the facilities and patterns of transportation and communication within and between different areas;
- (d) available census data and other demographic information;
- (e) the number of electors in the electoral districts appearing on the most recent official lists of electors;
- (f) any special circumstances relating to the existing electoral districts;
- (g) the boundaries of municipalities and First Nations governments;
- (h) public input obtained under section 416 [public hearings];
- (i) any other reasons or information relied on by the Commission.

Approach

As with the 2002 Commission, this Commission is mindful that adjustments in one electoral district inevitably have an impact upon a neighbouring electoral district, which in turn influences the next electoral district, and so on. In putting forward these proposals, we have recommended changes to the existing electoral district boundaries only where they are necessary to achieve effective representation and greater voter parity. Where changes were deemed necessary, we attempted to minimize the extent of those changes. We have endeavoured to achieve results which are balanced and fair. In particular, we have remained sensitive to the need for equity in the number of urban versus rural electoral districts.

Process

The Commission was appointed by the Commissioner in Executive Council under section 408 of the Elections Act.

Jo-Ann Waugh, as the chief electoral officer, is a member of this Commission pursuant to section 408(1)(a) of the Elections Act. Effective April 9, 2007, Justice Leigh Gower, Ione Christensen, Dave Hobbis and Doug Phillips were appointed as Chair and members of the Commission, respectively. Doug Phillips resigned from the Commission on April 15, 2007, following his appointment as Administrator of Yukon. Pursuant to section 408(3), Dan Lang was appointed as a member of the Commission on May 24, 2007 to fill the vacancy.

The Commission implemented a public information plan to explain its function and to seek public input. On June 1, 2007, the Commission wrote to a number of individuals and organizations inviting participation in its review of the Yukon's electoral district boundaries. That letter, attached as Appendix B, provided the Commission's e-mail address, mailing address, web site address and fax number. The list of invited participants is attached as Appendix C.

In June 2007, the Commission published a notice in The Whitehorse Star, The Yukon News, The Klondike Sun, l'Aurore boréale and What's Up Yukon, detailing ways to contact the Commission for further information and inviting written submissions. The notice is attached as part of Appendix D. Rolling advertisements were run on cable television and public service announcements were broadcast on radio. A notice was also sent to every household in the Yukon and is included in Appendix D.

Seven written submissions were received and will be included in the records of this Commission available to the public. A list of those who made submissions is attached as Appendix E.

The Commission submitted its interim report to the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly on October 3, 2007.

In November 2007, the Commission held public hearings, as discussed further below.

The Commission also advertised that it would continue to receive written submissions until January 31, 2008. Four additional written submissions were received prior to this final report.

Very few submissions or presentations were made to the Commission despite relatively extensive efforts to solicit them. We interpret this as an indication that the Yukon public is not desirous of extensive changes to the existing electoral districts.

Section 417 of the Elections Act requires the Commission to submit its final report to the Speaker within five months of the date of submission of the interim report. Thus, the effective deadline for this final report is March 3, 2008.

Public Hearings

Pursuant to section 416 of the Elections Act, the Commission is required to hold public hearings after the submission of the interim report. The purpose of the hearings is to enable members of the public to make representations as to the boundaries and names of any proposed electoral districts set out in the interim report. The Commission held public hearings at times and places that were determined by the Commission on the basis of perceived need. These hearings were advertised widely in the Yukon media. The schedule of hearings and the list of speakers appearing at those hearings is attached as Appendix F.

Acknowledgement

The Commission wishes to acknowledge the assistance of Debra Fendrick, legal counsel, and Dawn-Alena Brown, Secretariat.

PART II: CONSIDERATIONS

Legal Precedent

The Final Report of the 2002 Commission (the “2002 Report”)² has been cited favourably in electoral district boundaries reports across the country as providing an excellent review of the relevant court decisions. This Commission has undertaken its own review of the law and is satisfied that there have been no substantive changes in legal precedents since the 2002 Report. We have accepted the statements of law in the 2002 Report, which may be reviewed on our website at www.yukonboundaries.ca or at www.electionsyukon.gov.yk.ca. Having said that, for the sake of convenience, we will briefly summarize our approach in this area.

Any discussion of Canadian electoral law necessarily begins with section 3 of the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms (the “Charter”)³, which states:

Every citizen of Canada has the right to vote in an election of members of the House of Commons or of a legislative assembly and to be qualified for membership therein.

In the 1991 case, Reference re: Provincial Electoral Boundaries (Saskatchewan) (the “Saskatchewan Reference”)⁴, the Supreme Court of Canada ruled that the right to vote enshrined in section 3 of the Charter is the right to effective representation and not a right to equality of voting power per se. The Court recognized that deviation from absolute voter parity may be justified on the grounds of practical impossibility or the provision of more effective representation. Such relative parity as may be possible could prove undesirable if it detracts from the primary goal of effective representation. Various factors, such as geography, community history, community interests and minority representation, may be taken into account to achieve the goal of effective representation. The Commission is bound by the principles set out in the Saskatchewan Reference case and must be guided by the fundamental objective of effective representation.

While the Commission is not compelled to follow the decisions it reviewed from other courts, it has obtained guidance from them. We paid particular attention to decisions which involved northern and sparsely populated electoral districts.

Some jurisdictions in Canada have expressly legislated the extent to which they can deviate from voter parity in determining their electoral boundaries. For example:

- Alberta’s legislation provides that, if the Commission is of the opinion that three of five specific statutory criteria exist, the deviation in up to four rural electoral districts may be as great as 50% below the average number of electors in each district (the “electoral quotient”)⁵.
- In Nunavut, a deviation of up to 30% is allowed between the electoral quotient and the number of voters of any electoral district.⁶
- Manitoba provides for deviations of up to plus or minus 25% for electoral districts wholly or partially above the 53rd parallel, and up to plus or minus 10% for districts wholly south of that latitude.⁷

The Elections Act does not refer to a particular percentage deviation from voter parity in determining electoral boundaries. However, Canadian common law generally allows a deviation of plus or minus 25 percent as “the Canadian standard.”⁸ Previous Yukon Electoral District Boundaries Commissions, in their respective reports in 1991 and 2002, applied the plus or minus 25 percent deviation as a guideline, but were prepared to consider a greater deviation in order to achieve effective representation. We have taken the same approach. It is beyond the mandate of the Electoral District Boundaries Commission to make proposals to address any perceived inequities arising within the existing legislative framework. However, the Legislative Assembly may wish to consider enacting such changes.

Demographic Information

Section 419(a) of the Elections Act mandates that the Commission take into account “the density and rate of growth of the population of any area”; section 419(d) instructs the Commission to consider “available census data and other demographic information”; and section 419(e) of the Elections Act requires the Commission to take into account “the number of electors in the electoral districts appearing on the most recent official lists of electors”.

The Commission was informed that the most recent federal census was completed in May 2006. The most recent general election in Yukon was held in October 2006.

Previous Yukon Commissions, and, most recently, the 2002 Commission relied upon the number of eligible Yukon electors, as well as current and proposed development projects, rather than upon population figures. This Commission decided to use the same type of information, which it regards as the most accurate and up to date. As such it considered the numbers of electors from the October 2006 general election, as well as the number of electors in current and proposed development projects.

Special Circumstances

Section 419(f) of the Elections Act requires the Commission to take into account “any special circumstances relating to the existing electoral districts.” “Special circumstances” are not defined in the Elections Act.

The Saskatchewan Reference case spoke about some of the factors which may justify a departure from absolute voter parity in the pursuit of more effective representation. That decision made it clear that the list of factors that may need to be taken into account is not closed, however, those identified were:

- geography;
- community history;
- community interests; and
- minority representation.

*Friends of Democracy v. Northwest Territories (Attorney-General)*⁹, a case from the Supreme Court of the Northwest Territories in 1999, added to this list:

- language differences;
- difficulties in communication with remote communities; and travel expenses.

The 1991 Commission Report¹⁰ noted that substantial deviations from voter parity had been a characteristic feature of Yukon electoral districts for the previous two decades. That Report also noted under “Special circumstances of the Yukon”:

The entire region outside Whitehorse is sparsely populated and ... no other Canadian city dominates its province or territory to the extent that Whitehorse dominates the Yukon. The disproportionate representation of rural areas in the existing legislature was explicitly intended to offset this feature of population distribution. Given relatively less developed municipal organization of much of rural Yukon, MLAs from those areas contend with a broader range of responsibilities toward their constituents than is common elsewhere in Canada. Also, Yukoners are used to intensive representation and expect to be able to meet with their representatives, face-to-face, on a regular basis.

This Commission acknowledges that similar circumstances continue to exist today.

Number of Electoral Districts

There is no legislation that specifically provides for a minimum or maximum number of seats in the Legislative Assembly.

Timing of the Next Review

In estimating future growth, the Commission has kept in mind throughout its deliberations that section 411 of the Elections Act provides for another electoral boundaries review within six months of the second general election following this final report, but not sooner than six years after the appointment of this Commission.

Factors

In addition to the mandatory considerations set out in section 419 of the Elections Act, the Commission was guided by the following factors: geographic boundaries, the role of the Legislative Assembly and the electoral quotient.

Geographic Boundaries

The Commission has sought in its deliberations to simplify and rationalize electoral boundaries, wherever possible, on the basis of physical geography. Our intention is that the boundaries will be logical delineations which can be easily understood by electors. We also took into account the physical characteristics of the electoral districts, as required under section 419(b) of the Elections Act.

Role of the Legislative Assembly

The Commission appreciates the relative difficulty faced by some MLAs in serving their constituents, particularly in electoral districts which are vast and sparsely populated. However, we balanced this concern with the knowledge that the Legislature itself is able to take action to assist such members in meeting these responsibilities.

Electoral Quotient

The determination of an electoral quotient is typically a mathematical exercise where the total electoral population is divided by the number of electoral districts in a province or territory. The result is the average number of electors per electoral district. The plus or minus 25 percent guideline is commonly measured against the quotient. However, this approach is not exclusive.

The Saskatchewan Constituency Boundaries Act, 1993¹¹ employs a different method in calculating the electoral quotient. It removes the two northern ridings and their populations from its calculations. The electoral quotient for the remainder of the province is determined by using only the 56 remaining ridings and the population of those ridings. This legislated approach is in keeping with the recognition in the Saskatchewan Reference case that the two northern Saskatchewan ridings are justified, as they are vast with a relatively small and dispersed population.

PART III: PROPOSALS

The Commission did not begin its deliberations with any particular goal as to the number of electoral districts. Rather, we focused on the issues of effective representation and voter parity, and the number of electoral districts emerged from that approach. As a result, we propose 19 electoral districts, an addition of one from the present number of 18 electoral districts.

The 19 proposed electoral districts are comprised of 11 urban electoral districts within Whitehorse and eight rural electoral districts.

Residents of electoral districts within the City of Whitehorse reside in relatively cohesive and geographically compact neighbourhoods. Such residents are also generally closer to multiple government facilities and, presumably, have greater access to the services those governments provide. We reason that this would reduce the extent to which Whitehorse residents might otherwise rely on their MLAs to assist them. Thus, effective representation of Whitehorse residents may be enhanced simply by virtue of their location. This, in turn, generally allows for somewhat larger populations in City electoral districts to be represented as effectively as smaller, more dispersed rural populations.

The Commission notes in particular that the overall increase of the electoral population in Whitehorse is skewing the deviations in the rural areas. While we have struggled to respect the plus or minus 25 percent deviation guideline wherever possible, we concluded that we must be tolerant of higher deviations for some rural electoral districts in order to maintain a relative balance between the number of rural and urban electoral districts. We also noted with interest that the 2002 Commission proposed three electoral districts (not including Vuntut Gwitchin) which exceeded 25 percent and two electoral districts which were just under 25 percent.

The total number of electors in the Yukon is estimated to be 20,828, based on the combination of the total number of electors from the 2006 general election results and the estimated new electors in current and proposed development projects.

In calculating the electoral quotient, the Commission has decided not to include the electoral district of Vuntut Gwitchin and its 176 electors. Because the electoral population of Vuntut Gwitchin is significantly smaller than the average population in the other electoral districts, we concluded that including it in the calculation would skew the quotient. Therefore, we have calculated the average number of electors per electoral district as follows:

Total Electoral Population of Yukon /ess Electors in Vuntut Gwitchin [20,828 less 176 = 20,652]
Total Number of Electoral Districts /ess Vuntut Gwitchin [18]	[1,147]

Using the above formula, the average number of electors per electoral district is 1,147. Applying the plus or minus 25 percent deviation guideline, 25 percent over the average is 1,434 electors and 25 percent under the average is 860 electors.

The Commission was particularly concerned about the electoral district of Pelly-Nisutlin. We received a submission from the Village of Teslin Council asking that Teslin be part of the electoral district of Southern Lakes, together with the communities of Carcross and Tagish. We also received a submission from the Teslin Tlingit Council suggesting that the Teslin area should have its own electoral district. At the public hearing on November 21, 2007, we heard more from the mayor of Teslin and the chief of the Teslin Tlingit Council on both submissions. Of particular relevance to us were the comments about the challenges facing the MLA in this electoral district because of the vastness of the area and the difficulties in travelling to all the included communities. We were also advised that there are commonalities between the members of the Teslin Tlingit Council and the Carcross/Tagish First Nations.

On the other hand, the law dictates that we can only recommend exceeding the standard deviation of plus or minus 25% from the electoral quotient when there is strong justification for doing so. The electoral population of Pelly-Nisutlin is already very low, at 714, or 37.75 percent below the average. To remove the Teslin area from the electoral district would reduce the number of electors to an unjustifiable level below the electoral quotient. Further, the Teslin area simply does not yet have a sufficient electoral population to justify its own electoral district. Nor does this electoral district exhibit sufficient “special circumstances” to warrant that kind of treatment, as is the case for the proposed electoral district of Vuntut Gwitchin. (See pages 8 and 20.)

We also considered dismantling the electoral district of Pelly-Nisutlin and distributing the included communities to the neighbouring electoral districts. However, we rejected that option as it would create an even greater imbalance between the number of urban and rural districts.

Accordingly, while we acknowledge that the relationship of the Teslin area to the remainder of the electoral district is somewhat of an anomaly, we are unable to propose a justifiable solution other than to retain the district within its current boundaries.

The proposed electoral districts may be compared with the existing electoral districts, and their respective electoral quotients, by reviewing attached Appendices G1 and G2.

Summary

The Commission proposes:

- Retaining, without change, the electoral districts of :
 - Klondike
 - Kluane
 - Lake Laberge
 - Mayo-Tatchun
 - Pelly-Nisutlin
 - Riverdale North
 - Riverdale South
 - Vuntut Gwitchin
 - Watson Lake

- Whitehorse Centre

- Retaining the three electoral districts of Porter Creek Centre, Porter Creek North and Porter Creek South, although the boundaries will be adjusted to include proposed developments in the Porter Creek area.
- A new electoral district named Copperbelt North that includes parts of the existing electoral districts of Copperbelt and Whitehorse West.
- A new electoral district named Copperbelt South that includes parts of the existing electoral districts of Copperbelt and Mount Lorne.
- A new electoral district named Mount Lorne-Southern Lakes that includes part of the existing electoral district of Mount Lorne and the existing electoral district of Southern Lakes.
- A new electoral district named Mountainview that includes the subdivisions of McIntyre, Valleyview, Granger and Hillcrest.
- A new electoral district named Takhini-Kopper King that includes the subdivisions of Takhini, Takhini North, Mountain View, as well as Yukon College and three mobile home parks.
- The existing electoral district of Whitehorse West be changed to include the proposed development in the Arkell Subdivision by moving a portion of the existing electoral district into the proposed electoral district of Copperbelt North.

Electoral Districts

Copperbelt North

The Commission proposes a new electoral district named Copperbelt North, which includes parts of the existing electoral districts of Copperbelt and Whitehorse West.

This new electoral district reflects the rapid expansion of the existing electoral district of Copperbelt. In 2002, at the first election held following the establishment of Copperbelt, the number of electors on the list was 1,296 and at the 2006 general election the number of electors had increased to 1,748. The subdivision of Copper Ridge, a large part of the electoral district, has continued to grow since the most recent election and there will be additional developments starting this year. The increase in the existing electoral population of Copperbelt is an unacceptable 60.81 percent above the average.

This proposed electoral district will be named Copperbelt North and will include Lobird and approximately two-thirds of the subdivision of Copper Ridge. The estimated number of electors is 1,180, above the average by 2.88 percent.

Copperbelt South

The Commission proposes a new electoral district named Copperbelt South, which includes parts of the existing electoral districts of Copperbelt and Mount Lorne.

The proposed electoral district of Copperbelt South will include the most southern part of the existing electoral district of Copperbelt and the subdivisions of Mount Sima, Spruce Hill, Pineridge, Wolf Creek North, Wolf Creek, Mary Lake, Cowley Creek, Whitehorse Copper, MacRae and Golden Horn. The new development of Fox Haven Estates will also be included. The proposed number of electors will be 1,169, or above the average by 1.92 percent.

Klondike

The Commission proposes retaining the existing electoral district of Klondike.

The electoral population of 1,122 is below the average by 2.18 percent. The vast majority of electors live in Dawson City and the immediate area. An increase in the electoral population is not anticipated. This electoral district also includes residents on the Dempster Highway.

Kluane

The Commission proposes retaining the existing electoral district of Kluane.

The number of electors is 753, or 34.35 percent below the average, which is a significant deviation. However, this electoral district remains one of the largest geographically in the Yukon. Its population is spread among several small but dispersed communities along the Alaska Highway and the Haines Road. The boundaries of this electoral district extend from the Takhini River Bridge on the Alaska Highway to the international boundary with the United States. The communities in the electoral district are Champagne, Aishihik, Haines Junction and area, Burwash Landing, Destruction Bay, Beaver Creek and the subdivisions of Mendenhall, Takhini River and Canyon Creek.

Lake Laberge

The Commission proposes retaining the existing electoral district of Lake Laberge.

The existing electoral district of Lake Laberge has an electoral population of 1,110, or 3.23 percent below the average. Some increases in this population are anticipated with proposed development in the Takhini Hotsprings Road and Scott Road (Grizzly Valley) areas. The residents of this electoral district continue to share common interests with their rural lifestyles. The subdivisions of Hidden Valley, Pilot Mountain and MacPherson, the Hamlet of Ibex Valley, the Lake Laberge area and the Echo Valley area are all within this electoral district.

Mayo-Tatchun

The Commission proposes retaining the existing electoral district of Mayo-Tatchun.

The current electoral district has an electoral population of 797, or 30.51 percent below the average. While that deviation is significant, this electoral district has characteristics similar to the electoral district of Kluane. It is also one of the largest geographically in the Yukon. The population is spread among a number of small communities situated on two highways, the North Klondike and the Silver Trail. The communities in this electoral district include Carmacks, Pelly Crossing, Mayo, Stewart Crossing, Elsa and Keno Hill.

Mount Lorne-Southern Lakes

The Commission proposes a new electoral district that includes parts of the existing electoral district of Mount Lorne and the existing electoral district of Southern Lakes, with the new name of Mount Lorne-Southern Lakes.

The residents of this proposed electoral district share interests associated with their rural lifestyles, while having access to urban facilities. The proposed electoral district will have an electoral population of 1,128, or 1.66 percent below the average. Residents who live on the South Klondike Highway and surrounding areas from the “Carcross Cutoff” to the existing boundary of Southern Lakes will be part of this electoral district. It will contain the communities in the subdivision of Robinson, Marsh Lake and area, Carcross, Tagish, the Hamlet of Mount Lorne and the Atlin Road to the British Columbia border.

Mountainview

The Commission proposes a new electoral district that includes parts of the current electoral district of Copperbelt and the current electoral district of McIntyre-Takhini, with the new name of Mountainview.

The proposed electoral district is estimated to have an electoral population of 1,306, or 13.86 percent above the average. It will include the subdivisions of McIntyre, Granger, Valleyview and Hillcrest. The area is compact and the residents share a common elementary school and access to government services.

Pelly-Nisutlin

The Commission proposes retaining the current electoral district of Pelly-Nisutlin.

The electoral population is 714, or 37.75 percent below the average. Again, this is a significant deviation. However, this electoral district shares the types of challenges found in those of Kluane and Mayo-Tatchun. It is geographically among the largest of the electoral districts in the Yukon. The population in the proposed electoral district continues to be spread among a number of small but dispersed communities: Faro, Little Salmon, Ross River, Teslin and Johnsons Crossing. There has been no significant change to the electoral population in this electoral district.

Unfortunately, the Village of Teslin and the surrounding area is geographically removed from the remainder of the electoral district. However, the electoral population of that area has not yet grown to a number that would provide for it to have its own electoral district. We have also noted that, with the exception of the period from 1974 to 1977, the electoral history of the communities of Ross River and Teslin is that they have traditionally been placed in the same electoral district. The Commission has carefully considered other options, but the electoral populations in these communities do not currently support a different conclusion.

Porter Creek Centre

The Commission proposes retaining the electoral district of Porter Creek Centre, although the boundary will be adjusted to include proposed developments in the Porter Creek area.

Porter Creek Centre will be bordered by the Yukon River, McIntyre Creek, Holly and Sycamore Streets. The boundary has been altered in anticipation of development in the Porter Creek Bench area. The estimated electoral population is 1,296, or 12.99 percent above the average.

Porter Creek North

The Commission proposes retaining the electoral district of Porter Creek North, although the boundary will be adjusted to include proposed developments in the Porter Creek area.

Porter Creek North boundary will change to accommodate the proposed Porter Creek Bench development and include Holly and Sycamore Streets as well as part of 12th Avenue East. The estimated electoral population is 1,141, or 0.52 percent below the average. This electoral district also includes the subdivision of Crestview and the Taylor and Kulan Industrial subdivisions.

Porter Creek South

The Commission proposes retaining the electoral district of Porter Creek South, although the boundary will be adjusted to include proposed developments in the Porter Creek area.

Porter Creek South boundary will change to accommodate the extension of Pine Street. The change is to the most northern boundary of this electoral district and the boundary will be in common with Porter Creek North. The estimated electoral population is 1,279, or 11.51 percent above the average.

Riverdale North

The Commission proposes retaining the existing electoral district of Riverdale North.

The electoral district has an electoral population of 1,296, or 12.99 percent above the average. The area is compact and effectively encircled by the Yukon River and an escarpment of Grey Mountain, which constrains further development opportunities. It has relatively condensed neighbourhoods and easy access to government services. The residents share urban interests.

Riverdale South

The Commission proposes retaining the existing electoral district of Riverdale South.

The electoral district has an electoral population of 1,315, or 14.65 percent above the average. The area has the same urban and geographic characteristics as Riverdale North, with the Yukon River as part of its boundary.

Takhini-Kopper King

The Commission proposes that the existing electoral district of McIntyre-Takhini be changed by removing the subdivisions of McIntyre and Valleyview from that electoral district and that the new electoral district be named Takhini-Kopper King.

The proposed electoral district will have an electoral population of 1,355, or 18.13 percent above the average and will continue to have residents who share common urban interests. It will include: all of the Fish Lake Road; the subdivisions of Takhini, Takhini North, Mountain View and Raven's Ridge; as well as the Kopper King, Northland and Takhini Mobile Home Parks.

Vuntut Gwitchin

The Commission proposes retaining the existing electoral district of Vuntut Gwitchin.

The electoral population of this electoral district is 176.

This Commission recognizes, as have previous Commissions, that Vuntut Gwitchin is the least populated electoral district in the Yukon. The Commission is proposing that it remain a separate electoral district, as the special circumstances identified in the 1991 and 2002 Commission Reports continue to exist. In particular, we agree with the 2002 Report, which stated:

- “• it is geographically distinct from all other electoral districts in the Yukon, in that it is the most remote and has no road access;
- the community of Old Crow is almost exclusively Vuntut Gwitchin First Nation, with common language, traditional lifestyle and culture;
- the strong common interests of the residents may be adversely affected if the community is included in another electoral district.”¹²

Watson Lake

The Commission proposes retaining the existing electoral district of Watson Lake.

The estimated electoral population is 1,059, substantially unchanged from the 2002 Report, and 7.67 percent below the average. Major changes to the electoral population are not anticipated.

Whitehorse Centre

The Commission proposes retaining the existing electoral district of Whitehorse Centre.

The electoral population for this electoral district is estimated to be 1,368, or 19.27 percent above the average. The electoral district will have growth from current and proposed condominium developments in the downtown part of the City of Whitehorse. As noted in the 2002 Report, the area has natural dividing lines and condensed neighbourhoods and the residents enjoy immediate access to all levels of government. This electoral district also includes the Marwell Industrial subdivision.

Whitehorse West

The Commission proposes that the existing electoral district of Whitehorse West be changed to include the proposed development in the Arkell Subdivision by moving a portion of the existing electoral district into the proposed electoral district of Copperbelt North.

The estimated electoral population is 1,264, or 10.20 percent above the average. In order to accommodate the proposed development in the Arkell Subdivision, part of the existing electoral district of Whitehorse West will be moved into the proposed electoral district of Copperbelt North. The new boundary will include streets in Copper Ridge that are part of the current boundary separating Copperbelt and Whitehorse West.

Time of appointment

411. (1) The first Commission shall be appointed within three months of the coming into force of this Part.

(2) Subsequent Commissions shall be appointed within six months of polling day following every second general election after the appointment of the last Commission.

414. The remuneration and expenses referred to in section 413 and all other costs of the Commission shall be provided for in a program under the Elections Office vote and paid out of the Yukon Consolidated Revenue Fund.

Interim report

415. (1) The Commission shall establish a process for receiving representations leading to an interim report.

(2) After considering any representations to it and within seven months of the date on which the Commission is appointed, the Commission shall submit to the Speaker an interim report, which shall set out the boundaries, number, and names of proposed electoral districts and which shall include the reasons for its proposals.

(3) On receipt of the interim report under subsection (2), the Speaker shall

(a) if the Legislative Assembly is sitting when it is submitted, table it within five sitting days in the Legislative Assembly; or

(b) if the Legislative Assembly is not then sitting, cause it to be transmitted to all members of the Legislative Assembly and then to be made public.

(4) If the office of Speaker is vacant, the interim report shall be submitted to the clerk of the Legislative Assembly, who shall comply with subsection (3).

Public hearings

416. (1) The Commission shall hold public hearings after the submission of the interim report.

(2) The public hearings shall be held at the places and times considered appropriate by the Commission to enable any person to make representations as to the boundaries and names of any proposed electoral district set out in its interim report.

(3) The Commission shall give reasonable public notice of the time, place and purpose of any public hearings.

Final report

417. (1) The Commission shall, after considering the representations made to it, and within five months of the date it submits an interim report under section 415, submit to the Speaker a final report.

(2) The final report of the Commission shall be tabled, transmitted to members of the Legislative Assembly and made public in the same manner as the interim report under section 415.

(3) If the office of the Speaker is vacant, the final report shall be submitted to the clerk of the Legislative Assembly, who shall comply with subsection (2).

Legislation creating new electoral districts

418. (1) Following the tabling of the final report, the government shall introduce legislation to establish the electoral districts.
